

A FIRST FOR DELTA AIRELITE

Delta AirElite is very pleased to announce the purchase of Segrave Aviation, a business aviation services provider based in Kinston, N.C. This acquisition —Delta AirElite's first—not only doubles the size of our fleet, but improves Web based booking, and ensures we continue to deliver the best experience in private jet travel by providing even more options for our fleet members and charter customers.

Delta AirElite has been growing its business organically and internally by boosting its aircraft fleet, introducing innovative charter programs such as Fleet Membership, and bringing nothing less than outstanding service and value to our customers. "We saw this acquisition as a way to take our award-winning service to an even greater level," said Michael Green, Executive Chairman, Delta AirElite.

"This is an excellent opportunity to couple Delta AirElite's award-winning service and scheduling flexibility with Segrave's leadership in online flight management and operations control," said Wayne Aaron, Delta's vice president—Corporate Strategy and Business Development. "The Segrave acquisition supports our strategy to offer differentiated products and services to our customers."

Jim Segrave, newly appointed President of Delta AirElite, adds: "Coupling Delta's world-renowned brand and reputation for service with Segrave's history as an innovator in private jet operations is a natural fit for the customers who have long counted on Segrave and Delta AirElite. All of us at Segrave look forward to the opportunity to grow this exciting segment of Delta's business."

CHARTER FLEET: NEW ARRIVALS

Q&A with Michael Green and Jim Segrave

Q: Why did Delta AirElite acquire Segrave Aviation?

Mike: We think of it as having combined two companies with the same core values of safety and service and adding complimentary strengths. Delta AirElite's focus has been on building a comprehensive Fleet Membership program with award-winning service while Segrave's strength is leading edge technology. Both have earned the ARG/US Platinum rating—the highest safety rating possible.

Jim: Additionally, it's important to note that only 20% of aircraft operators have earned this rating. Going forward, our commitment to the customer remains the same: to deliver a consistently safe, customized and innovative business aviation travel solution—at a competitive price.

Q: How will the Delta AirElite customer benefit from this change?

Jim: We are more capable of providing a consistent product on a global scale since we now control a larger fleet of aircraft. Segrave's technology will continue to simplify our quoting and fulfillment process and we will continue to exclusively offer benefits on Delta Air Lines, such as Medallion status, SkyMiles and more.

Q: Will there be any changes to the company's executive team?

Mike: Yes, the founder of Segrave Aviation, Jim Segrave, is now President and he joins the Board of Directors. I have been named Executive Chairman and will continue on the Board. Both Segrave and Delta AirElite bring a dedicated group of smart, talented people and we're looking forward to delivering award-winning customer service and maintaining the highest safety ratings in the industry together.

All aircraft and crew are required to meet our strict operating standards, including the ARG/US Platinum Safety rating. Delta AirElite is entering into arrangements with aircraft owners looking to offset fixed expenses and receive monthly income from their aircraft. Through this new and innovative program, Delta AirElite will pay the fixed expenses, such as crewmember salaries, benefits, training, insurance and hangar costs. We also cover all fuel costs and provide an hourly reimbursement for use of the aircraft. If you or someone you know would like more information on this new program from Delta AirElite, please call Brandon Greene, Director of Managed Aircraft Sales at 260-616-0107.
